March is Reading Month: New Books for Spring Break

What is it about a beautiful book that invigorates us and jumpstarts our creative pursuits? We have two new books in the shop (and one coming soon!) and they're bound to transport you to another place. Often, we find ourselves turning to books when we need a boost of inspiration, whether in terms of color, texture or perhaps a new craft entirely. As we continue to transition from Deep Winter to Not-Quite-Spring here in Northern Michigan, we hope the world of making continues to be a treasured companion in your life.

skills were practiced daily out of necessity. We also connect to our present, as we stop to slow down and enjoy the work at hand, leaving behind the stress of our busy days. And, possibly at the heart of our creations, is the future.

This is, perhaps, the most stunning issue of Making so far. The creamy, knit patterns: 11 sweaters and 5 accessories.

Seaside is a dreamy collection of knitwear photographed on the incredible coast of Maine. For this collection includes a bit of texture, dreamy palette, the striking desert scenery and the full range of projects highlighted making this issue a visual feast.

Mending Matters explores sewing on two levels: First, it includes more than 20 hands-on projects that showcase current trends in visible mending that are edgy, modern, and bold—but draw on traditional stitching. It does all this through just four very simple mending techniques: exterior patches, interior patches, slow stitches, darning, and weaving. In addition, the book addresses the way mending leads to a more mindful relationship to fashion and to overall well-being. In essays that accompany each how-to chapter, Katrina Rodabaugh explores mending as a metaphor for appreciating our own naturally flawed selves, and she examines the ways in which mending teaches us new skills, self-reliance, and confidence, all gained from making things with our own hands.
