Wearing Your Heart on Your Sleeve

How are you, friends? Hanging in there?

Today started week 4 of Michigan's shelter-in-place. Sometimes, it feels as though we've been doing this forever, and other days feel as though we've just begun. There are terrible AND beautiful things happening every single day. We could never have predicted the horror unfolding before us--and are simultaneously brought to our knees when we hear stories of the kindness of others. It's too much--all at once--and we're holding each of you in our hearts as we imagine you walking your own path. This is not easy. Stay the course.

We've rounded up some of our favorite enamel pins from the shop that might spark a little joy in your life. 'I Like Being Alive'--we're doing best to 'Stay Positive' because 'We Will Survive The Darkness'. Send a 'Love Letter' to a friend, gaze out your window at the 'Minimal Landscape', keep your heart in your hand....and don't forget about the 'Land of Delight'. It'll be waiting here for you when it's safe to travel again.

While we love these wearable reminders of peace and hope, there is no pin that will make loneliness, grief or depression go away. Please remember that you are not alone. Sometimes even the strongest people need help. Asking for help is brave. You are brave. And you matter. If you need someone to talk to, please text HOME to 741741 to connect with a real, life crisis counselor who will listen, day or night, no judgement whatsoever.

Taproot Magazine
Issue 38: Forage

One of our favorite ways to escape (besides knitting, of course!) is within the pages of a beautiful book or magazine. We are in love with the newest issue of Taproot Magazine, especially the fresh, whimsical cover art by one of our favorite artists, Dinara Mirtalipova. Taproot is an ad-free publication that celebrates farm, food, family and craft through writing, photography and the arts, both fine and domestic. Filled with essays, inspiration and DIY-projects, this magazine is a balm for the creative soul.

Brooklyn Tweed Trunk Show: Wool People. 13

'Seamark' by Rachel Brockman in Brooklyn Tweed Arbor in 'Sashiko'.

Our bricks-and-mortar shop might be temporarily closed through April 30th, but we are still (safely!) shipping packages worldwide every single day. We're lucky enough to have the Brooklyn Tweed Wool People 13 trunk show here in the shop right now, and while we're extremely disappointed we can't show it to you in person, let's have a peek at some of these woolies, yes?

'Laceleaf' by Alejandra Graterol in Brooklyn Tweed Peerie in 'Palazzo'.

This is a reminder, too, that the Brooklyn Tweed Apart Together initiative is still going strong through May 15th. What does this mean for you?

Buying American yarns at a discounted price allows you to take comfort in new projects without creating additional money-stress--while at the same time supporting your local yarn store. In this Pay-What-You-Choose system, any amount you elect to pay--from 30% off to full retail price--will be credited to Wool & Honey. This means you're directly supporting us while we navigate life in the wake of COVID-19, and at the same time, supporting Brooklyn Tweed and their mission: to connect Makers to their materials by creating timeless wool yarns and patterns that support textile production in the USA.

'Bract' by Sarah Shepherd in Brooklyn Tweed Loft in 'Yellowstone' (MC), 'Bale' + 'Fossil'.
